Lydia Aquí:

“When I was a kid, my mom worked a second job as a home care worker to provide for our family. I saw her endure long hours and low wages.

“Back then, I didn't have the power to stand up for my mom. That's why today, I've devoted my career to fighting for workers like her.”

Lydia Edwards Is One of Us, Fighting for All of Us

Lydia Edwards grew up watching her mother, a U.S. Air Force veteran, working multiple jobs to pay the bills. In high school, Lydia and her sister worked at their local grocery store and the youth center to help make ends meet.

Other military families, neighbors, and church members from St. Anthony's extended a helping hand by providing job opportunities, scholarships, and babysitting.

Lydia's community was always there for her. That's why she is always there for her community.

In her 15 years of experience practicing law, Lydia has represented small business owners, tenants, and domestic workers who were working in unsafe conditions and denied the wages they earned. Lydia built a coalition to pass the Domestic Workers' Bill of Rights and saw it signed into law.

Lydia has always taken on the fights for our families, where she fought for our schools and affordable housing, reduced pollution, and expanded opportunities for all of us.

Lydia is the game-changing leader we need fighting for us.
